INTRODUCTION

The program activation procedures described can be used to activate the use of COROB TRUECOLOR.

The program activation process converts the COROB protected application to a fully-licensed version.

This Quick Guide will explain to you how to activate the program with a software license, both in online and offline mode, that is, with or without an internet connection.

The license is locked to the user on the computer. The program should be accessed and used by a single user to avoid multiple license requests.

Note:- The software should be accessed and used by single user to avoid multiple license request.
